

About The Electric Times

The Electric Times is the only print and digital newspaper dedicated to Arizona's electrical, lighting and power industries. First published in 1993, The Electric Times is the premier communication tool for companies that want to reach Arizona's top electrical professionals and hands-on talent.

Published every month, The Electric Times provides information to contractors, distributors, manufacturers, manufacturers' representatives, facility managers, utilities and related industry professionals.

Thanks to Arizona's unique climate, the electrical industry here is dynamic year-round. Add to that Arizona's vigorous involvement in sustainable growth initiatives, and it's clear why The Electric Times is the ideal location for your advertising and information.

IEC Arizona Chapter graduates 13 apprentices

Alan M. Puyello
The Independent Electrical Contractors Association Chapter (IEC-AZ) held an apprentice graduation ceremony in late November, graduating 13 individuals from the two-year training program. The event was hosted by the IEC Arizona Chapter and the Phoenix Chapter of the IEC-AZ.

Guest speakers at the ceremony included three graduates of the IEC-AZ apprentice program — Chad Smith, project manager for Feltz Construction, IEC instructor and 2011 IEC-AZ graduate; James Smith, president of Smith Electric, 2011 IEC-AZ graduate; and John Miller, director of human resources for Kameron Energy Group, Inc., 2011 IEC-AZ graduate. IEC-AZ also presented a certificate of appreciation to each of the 13 graduates.

The apprentice graduating class consisted of individuals from AME Electrical Contracting Inc., Canyon Electric Co. Inc., Case Electric LLC, CPE Electric Inc., Haskins Electric Inc., KJ Electric, Inc.

CSE collects LEGO sets for children receiving inpatient care

Phonics, sets, and LEGO sets — Canyon State Electric (CSE) donated 317 LEGO sets on Dec. 18 to Phoenix Children's as part of its annual LEGO Drive. The drive concluded by final year bringing in over double the amount of LEGO sets collected in 2022.

The LEGO Drive began in 2021 after the passing of Canyon State Electric founder, Bob Haskins. He founded the drive with LEGO and donated sets to children in need of toys each December.

"The LEGO Drive has been our year while giving children hope for the future," said CSE President Mark Haskins. "I'm inspired every year by the way our CSE team and industry partners share their enthusiasm and generosity."

Readership and Distribution

Electric Times readers work in the commercial, industrial, residential, utility and non-building markets. Each month over 8,000 print copies are distributed through two primary channels:

- by mail to a controlled list of professionals and decision makers (40%);
- through a monitored network of service counters, showrooms and offices (60%).

In addition to this regular monthly distribution, The Electric Times maintains an active schedule of providing bonus distribution through the year at trade shows, distributor open houses, industry organization meetings, and continuing education classrooms.

There is no better way to reach Arizona's entire electrical industry, from technicians in the field to executives in the boardroom, than through The Electric Times.

The Electric Times* Primary Readership

Contractors	30%
Utilities and government agencies	15%
Distributors	12%
Manufacturers and manufacturers' reps	11%
Engineering, architecture and design firms	10%
